FMEC and Navigate Tally Over $5 Million in Potential Loan Savings During Annual Meeting

DAYTON, OHIO – As a service to members and other physicians in the Northeast U.S., the Family Medicine Education Consortium (FMEC) partners with Navigate, a company that helps physicians take back control of their student loans—and their lives. Through expert advice and consultations, Navigate helps save doctors money and can help health systems take better care of their employees.

The FMEC’s 2022 Annual Meeting, held September 16-18, 2022, in Arlington, VA, proved that the partnership with Navigate Student Loans is a huge benefit for both organizations. According to Navigate’s President, Joy Sorensen Navarre, the Million Dollar Challenge to show physicians their possible student loans savings soared way past the $1 million goal to $5.2 million at the 2022 meeting.

“We encourage all of the residents, faculty and others who participate in the FMEC to take advantage of Navigate’s services and discuss student loan reduction,” says Scott G. Allen, FMEC CEO. “The Navigate team is easy to work with and provides great advice. We want to hear more stories about loan balances being eliminated!”

Navigate’s booth saw non-stop traffic, with FMEC physicians stopping by to see if their loan costs could be reduced. In each 15-minute, complimentary session, Navigate reviewed loan sources, servicers, loan types and pay-off plans. Using their proprietary algorithm, Navigate determined maximum savings. Individual savings ranged from $40,000 to $500,000.

Physicians who missed out can still take Navigate’s 15-minute free session to see how much they could save, or if they are doing well as is. Navigate works with each borrower for the entire life of their loan, so physicians get Navigate’s help at any point, for no additional cost. Also, Navigate donates a portion of the proceeds back to FMEC. So physicians win. Navigate wins. FMEC wins.

About Navigate Student Loans

Navigate Student Loans supports healthcare systems by reducing student loan debt for their physicians and candidates. Savings typically range from $40,000--$500,000 per physician. Physicians value employers who help them and provide this peace-of-mind. Healthcare systems benefit because this strengthened loyalty boosts recruitment and retention. Joy Sorensen Navarre established Navigate in 2014. Her company is a foremost authority on physician student loan laws because Navigate specializes in physician student debt. In fact, Navigate's clients are on track to save nearly $280,340,000 on their student loans. Navigate's partnership with the FMEC helps members save the most on their student loans, or assists them with PSLF (loan forgiveness). This help lets physicians laser focus time on patients—not student loans. Meanwhile, healthcare systems enjoy increased recruitment and retention because of the loyalty to employers this assistance builds.
